

PUBLISHED IN USA DRAWINGS BY GERARDO HERNÁNDEZ, ONE OF THE CUBAN FIVE

Dearest friends of the Cuban Five:

The book “Drawings by Gerardo Hernández Nordelo: Humor from my Pen” has finally been released in the United States, containing a collection of political cartoons created by this Cuban hero during the 16 years of his unjust imprisonment in various federal prisons within the U.S. empire.

This edition of the book has been translated into English and printed in full color from cover to cover. It includes a prologue from the well-known African-American actor Danny Glover, remarks from Hernández and his wife, Adriana Pérez, and an epilogue from Gilbert Brownstone, president of the Brownstone Foundation for the arts.

Published by “Editorial Letra Viva,” the book is already available for sale as an e-Book, and can be downloaded through Amazon.

In its printed form, it can be purchased through the catalogues of leading U.S. bookstores, like Barnes & Noble, and Books & Books.

Gerardo Hernández Nordelo, was unfairly sentenced by a court in Miami to two life sentences plus 15 years in prison. As a result of an intensive international solidarity campaign for his release, along with that of the remaining two imprisoned members of the Cuban Five (Ramón Labañino and Antonio Guerrero), the Cuban and U.S. governments reached an agreement and all three men were freed on December 17, 2014. During his entire incarceration, the U.S. government denied his wife a visa in order to visit him. He is a “Hero of the Republic of Cuba.”

“Drawings by Gerardo Hernández Nordelo: Humor from my Pen” has to become an effective tool for spreading the truth about the Cuban Five in the American society.
